

The Environment

You have been so good to us
While we have let you down
Though some have not abused your trust
You still don't smile, you just frown

The waste we hate we lay on you,
Which causes you so much pain
What I say is really true
So you will not be lost in vain

Our skies go dark, while our temperature changes
And we are left to suffer
Do you try to punish us?
Since nature is our mother!

Sympathy's not what you feel
To those who turned their back
For many you are a big deal
For others care is all they lack

For our environment,
Yes, you that I speak of
Can be angry force or
One that just needs love
